

Service Learning Resources

As campuses and communities have increasingly become committed to service-learning courses during the last 20 years, the number of service-learning and civic engagement resources also has grown. In addition to the Center for Teaching and the Civic Engagement Program on the UI campus, here are a number of other excellent resources:

Civic Engagement Program

<http://www.uiowa.edu/~cep/>

The Civic Engagement Program strengthens students' learning opportunities by linking the University's teaching, research, and service mission to community needs through service.

Campus Compact

<http://www.compact.org/>

Includes hundreds of model syllabi for service-learning courses catalogued by discipline. Also offers an in-depth section on creating and assessing reflection questions.

Learn-and-Serve America's National Service-Learning Clearinghouse

<http://www.servicelearning.org>

An excellent, broad resource for information and funding on service learning and broader issues in civic engagement. Includes information for K-12 as well as higher ed.

Michigan Journal of Community Service Learning

<http://www.umich.edu/~mjcs/>

Publishes articles on research, theory, pedagogy, and other issues related to academic service-learning in higher education

Edward Ginsburg Center for Community Service and Learning, University of Michigan

<http://ginsberg.umich.edu/>

Strives to engage students, faculty members, university staff, and community partners in a process which combines community service and academic learning

Carlson Leadership and Public Service Center, University of Washington

<http://depts.washington.edu/leader/servicelearning/index.html>

Develops service-learning, community-based participatory research and service opportunities for students

Students Serve

<http://www.studentsserve.org/>

Students Serve is a nonprofit organization that provides service-learning grants to innovative college students across the country

Iowa Campus Compact

<http://www.iacampuscompact.org/>

Committed to fulfilling the public purposes of higher education in the state of Iowa.